

Alma Mater

*Alma Mater, dear old Millsaps,
Loyal sons are we;
Our fond hearts are thine alone,
And ever more shall be.
Proud art thou in classic beauty
Of thy noble past,
With thy watchword, Honor, Duty,
Thy high fame shall last.*

*Ev'ry student, man and maiden,
Swell the glad refrain,
Till the breezes, music-laden,
Waft it back again.
Proud art thou in classic beauty
Of thy noble past,
With thy watchword, Honor, Duty,
Thy high fame shall last*

THE MAN

Who, as a true Christian gentleman, an able scholar, a wise and understanding adviser, and, above all, the man who, by his splendid personality and untiring patience, has gained the lasting respect and admiration of every student, this, the Nineteen Twenty-Five BOBASHELA, is respectfully dedicated.

FOREWORD

Our happiness cannot always be satisfied by lingering within college walls and dreamily looking forward to the future into which we must pass.

And after we have been encompassed with that galaxy of problems which await us, and as the evening time of life draws on, it should be as the sight of land to a ship-wrecked sailor to take from the shelf a copy of the Nineteen Twenty-Five BOBASHELA, imperfect in its make-up and crude in its form, and, forgetting the errors of the book, be able to spend a few hours living over, as it were, those days spent in Majordom.

For no other purpose have we made this book.

LOVER'S LANE

On Sabbath evening, once again,
The Angelus is tolling;
While down our leaf-strewn Lover's-lane,
Young iads and maids go strolling.

I try to tell, but all in vain,
How much my heart has missed you
Since that last day down Lover's-lane,
When first I held and kissed you.

How sweet the thrush upon the hill
When lips met lips caressing,
But sweet as that and sweeter still,
Were your soft lips confessing.

No balm has come to still the pain,
Though still the thrush is singing;
And, 'midst the peace of Lover's-lane,
The Angelus is ringing. R. W. T.

SHELLIE MARSHALL BAILEY, B.S., Θ K N Harpersville, Miss.

Basketball, '23, '24, '25; Captain Freshmen, '23; Manager Varsity, '24; Captain Varsity, '25; Football, '24, '25; Baseball, '23, '24, '25; Captain Freshmen, '23; Track, '23, '24, '25; Student Government Board, '25; All One Club; Square and Compass; Three-Year Student.

The ever-ready smile and wit of "Senor," with his record as a four-letter man and on the All-One list at least once, make this Harpersville product one of the most popular men in school. His favorite indoor sport is reading English parallels before breakfast.

BESSIE D. BOWLING, B.S. Harpersville, Miss.

Freshman Commission, '23; Girls' Glee Club, '24; Y. W. C. A.

Bessie D. has made herself known and heard from her first day in school. The good part about it is that she is the kind of person you like to know, and who says things that are good to hear and are delightful to remember. We will always recall our "little classmate" with pleasure. Keep on being and saying, Bessie D.

ROBERT H. BENNETT, B.S. Durant, Miss.

L. L. S.; Right Royal Ramblers; Bobashela Staff, '25; after two years' trying, passed Chemistry I.

An ineradicable grin, especially for the ladies, has gone a long way in winning friends for "Bob" at Millsaps. Friendliness and optimism, balanced by study and college spirit, have made his Millsaps record an enviable one.

Bobashela, Nineteen Twenty-Five

MARION L. BRANCH, A.B., ΣY Winona, Miss.

L. L. S.; Freshman Debater, '23; Mid-Session Debater, '24; Mississippi Debater, '25; Vice-President, '25; Y. M. C. A.; Delegate to Blue Ridge, '24; Cabinet, '25; P. & W. Staff, '25; Right Royal Ramblers; Alpha Pi Sigma; President Senior Class.

When you say of a man that he is good to look upon and Senior Class president, you have said more than is good for him to hear. But in this well-balanced branch of mankind it seems safe to commit ourselves further by acknowledging that his honors were actually won.

KATHLEEN CARMICHAEL, B.S. Utica, Miss.

Kathleen sits calmly and takes in everything and then when she gets ready to speak out, it would be well for everyone to stop and hear. Her geniality and outstanding scholarship make her a much-liked and highly valued member of the Nineteen Twenty-five Class.

MARCUS L. BURKS, B.S. Blue Mountain, Miss.

G. L. S.; Track Team, '22, '23, '24, '25; "M" Club; Student Government Board, '23, '25.

Burks has gained, through practice, the reputation of a quiet, companionable fellow who knows his friends and likes them. They are numbered by the student body of Millsaps. He plays a nice game of basketball and was one of the Millsaps representatives at Atlanta in S. I. A. A., 1922.

CORALIE MAY COTTON, A.B. Jackson, Miss.

Girls' Glee Club, '23, '24, '25; Vice-President, '23; Business Manager, '24; Basketball, '22, '23; Y. W. C. A.; Eastern Star, Chy Kia.

Coralie dares to do what she pleases. Why shouldn't she, since she pleases to do such interesting and attractive things? Nothing commonplace, anyway! And, above all, she has done college in three years. We predict an eventful and useful future for you, Coralie.

ROBERT ABBOTT FORD, B.S. Jackson, Miss.

Robert started off his college career at Millsaps and has returned, after two years at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to finish things up. When we think of his personality and ability to do many things well, we are glad to have him again in our ranks. We are sorry, Robert, that your senior year had to be somewhat spoiled by the study of such a subject as Latin.

JESSIE GRACE CRAIG, A.B., K. I. Omaha, Neb.

Vice-President Y. W. C. A., '23, '24; Girls' Glee Club, '23; Pan-Hellenic Council, '23; P. & W. Staff, '23.

Jessie is right there when it comes to brains, beauty, and beaux. What she has done in college (and she has done lots) has been done well, and, oh, so earnestly! Jessie closely approaches the "model college girl."

Bobashela, Nineteen Twenty-Five

MARTHA JANE CRISLER, A.B., K A Flora, Miss.

Basketball, '24; Science Club.

Martha seems to be very temperamental about attending college—that is, she is very irregular about it. However, in being that way, she gives the rest of us a running start that we really need in order to keep up with her. Her manner and attitude towards things generally enable one to guess correctly that her label is "landed gentry."

JOHN LEE GAINEY, A.B., K A Jackson, Miss.

L. L. S.; Glee Club, '24, '25; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '24; P. & W. Staff, '24.

Lee is always "up and doing, with a heart for any fate." That in itself would be enough to make him liked and admired, but in order to fortify himself against all kinds of folks he has added unto his most striking characteristic an unusual sociability, an excellent voice, and the trait of a hail-fellow-well-met that satisfies.

MARY ELLA DAVENPORT, A.B. Forest, Miss.

Bourgeois Medal, '22; All-One Club; Secretary Senior Class.

Mary showed her good judgment when she combined in herself the charm and sweetness of an old-fashioned pink and the brilliance and the intellectuality of an ultra modern. One in a hundred!

PAT ELKINS, A.B., K Δ Jackson, Miss.

A breeze, a rush, and then, of course, Pat. She begins to relate rapidly the uncommonly good luck which has overtaken her, or the veritable disaster. Either fortune entertains you and you rejoice or wait with her, as the case may be. She lives as much as the average person in just half the time, and always will.

WALTER MELLEN GALLOWAY, B.S., K Δ McComb, Miss.

L. L. S.; Football, '22, '24; Right Royal Ramblers; "M" Club.

Walter is a life-size picture of many a freshman's ambition. He is an athlete and a ladies' man, and stars equally in both roles. Notwithstanding all this, his literary side of college life has not been neglected.

JOELLA EVANS, B.S. Jackson, Miss.

Capital City Club; Chy Kia.

Everyone who knows Joella wishes that they had just half as much capability as she. We wouldn't mind being able to specialize in Chemistry with her ease or to have her unusual knack for selecting friends. We are rather jealous of the nonchalant way in which she takes college work and college play, and her success in both.

ALBERT NOTTLEY GORE, A.B. Walthall, Miss.

G. L. S. Treasurer, '23; Auditor, '24; Square and Compass.

The earnest way in which Gore has done his work has certainly commended him to the student body and the faculty, and bespeaks a useful and successful career in the ministry, his chosen profession.

EVELYN MAE FLOWERS, B.S., Phi Mu Jackson, Miss.

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '22; Pan-Hellenic Council, '23; Tennis Club, '21; Science Club.

Evelyn is always where she ought to be, and usually doing what she ought to do. At least she is very decided about whatever it is, of which characteristic we are envious. Strange—but she is pretty and fastidious with it all.

CLYDE H. GUNN, A.B. Hattiesburg, Miss.

Track, '23; Preachers' League; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '24, '25; L. L. S.; Freshman Debater, '22; Mid-Session Debater, '23; Commencement Debater, '25; Secretary, '23, '24; Vice-President, '24; President, '25.

A ministerial student with a sunny disposition, Clyde has, by hard work, native ability, broad-mindedness, and a pleasing personality, proven to us that he will make good in his chosen work. As he goes to Emory next year to finish his training for the greatest of all professions, the sincere good wishes of '25 go with him.

JAMES OWEN HARRIS, A.B. Shannon, Miss.

L. L. S.; Science Club; Manager Tennis Team, '25.

J. O. Harris, better known as "Peanut," has affected a carefree and easy-going manner and has attained somewhat of a reputation as a wit and a jolly good fellow. Underneath this rather casual exterior we all like to believe he is just as serious-minded and thoughtful as it is well for one to be.

MAGGIE MAY JONES, A.B. Jackson, Miss.

Freshman Commission, '23; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '23, '24, '25; Delegate to Cabinet Training Council, '22, '23; Delegate to Southern Student Conference, '24; Winner Silver Cup Montreat Song Contest, '24; P. & W. Staff, '25; M. I. P. A., '25; Literary Council, '23, '24, '25; Girls' Glee Club, '23, '24, '25; Secretary Girls' A. A., '24; Chy Kia.

The college hat is off to Maggie May. She is a satisfactory student, right hand of the Y. M. C. A., fairer half of the P. & W. Staff, and is outstanding for her all-roundness and all-oneness.

CARL LOTTERHOS HUBER, A.B. Crystal Springs, Miss.

L. L. S.; Science Club.

Carl has taken a most interesting part in college life during the past four years, and has gained distinction as one of the most dependable rooters and athletic fans. His literary work has not been neglected for all that. He has had judgment enough to mix them about half and half—a most satisfactory combination.

Bobashela, Nineteen Twenty-Five

LIDA MARGARET LACKEY, A.B. Forest, Miss.

Lida came to Millsaps in her junior year, but adapted herself to our ways and interests so quickly that she soon became an indispensable part of our class. She has helped to keep the scholarship record of the school high and was one of the pioneers in girls' basketball, and thus has taken her part in the two most important phases of college life.

WILEY RUFUS HUDDLESTON, B.S. Harpersville, Miss.

G. L. S. President, '25; Mississippi College Debater, '25; Science Club.

Ladies and gentlemen, it is with pleasure that we present one of Millsaps' ablest orators. Persuasiveness as a speaker has done much to win popularity for Huddleston, and his oratorical ability has a firm basis of learning, common-sense, sound judgment, and keen humor.

DORIS ELENA LAUCHLEY, B.S. Jackson, Miss.

Doris has kept us guessing all the while—we don't know whether she is really interested in the people about her as she sometimes seems, or whether her indifference is a carefully studied pose. In any case, the veil of mystery about her is quite attractive, and if it isn't genuine, she's the smartest girl we know.

GEORGE HAWKINS JONES, A.B., K Σ Vicksburg, Miss.

G. L. S. Vice-President, '24; President, '25; Freshman Debater; Mid-Session Debater, '23; "Ole Miss" Debater, '24; Commencement Debater, '25; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '24, '25; Vice-President, '25; Blue Ridge Delegate, '24; Regional Council Y. M. C. A., '25; Executive Committee, '25; Student Volunteer Band; President State Band, '25; National Council Member, '25; Preachers' League; Literary Council; Science Club; Right Royal Ramblers; Bobashela Staff, '25.

George has the enviable, yet rather troublesome, trait of having the courage of his convictions. It has afforded him a great deal of excitement and developed in him the ability to take his stand on a question and argue it with ease and good results.

GLADYS ROSALIE LOWE, B.S. Jackson, Miss.

Science Club, '25; Chy Kia.

"Kitty's" diminutive size and prettiness make her the coy member of the class. The adjective used in regard to her size by no means holds good in regard to her mentality and pep—one wonders where she keeps her supply of both.

HENRY LEWIS JONES, B.S. Jackson, Miss.

"Big Jones" came back to Millsaps after the World War with a good record and a wife, and joined the ranks of '25 to finish his college course. In no one could there be found more friendliness, a bigger heart, and greater readiness to help solve the problems about them. He has proven a loyal and worth-while member of our class, with an unusual ability to prolong class discussions.

ROBERT JAMES LANDIS, B.S. Jackson, Miss.

Capital City Club; Science Club; DeMolay.

The Class of '25 owns Landis gladly in spite of his divided allegiance. He has from time to time taken about an equal interest in an educational institution just over the hill as he has shown in his Alma Mater. Cheated as we have been, we don't hold it against you, "R. J." We trust you will have as good success there as you have here.

ETHEL NAOMI MARLEY, A.B., Phi M Jackson, Miss.

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '22, '23, '24; Treasurer, '23, '24, '25; Delegate to Training Cabinet, '23; Secretary Junior Class, '24; Accompanist Girls' Glee Club, '23, '24, '25; All-One Club.

Ethel is a most satisfactory combination of the practical and artistic. Officially, she is grand high maker of the grand high grades and player of the pianoforte at chapel and on other ceremonious occasions. But she doesn't let little things like that come between her and her friends, who are many.

WILLIAM WALLACE LESTER, B.S., Pi K A Jackson, Miss.

Secretary Freshman Class; All-One Club; President Sophomore Class; Honor Council, '24; Bobashela Staff, '24; Business Manager, '25.

Wallace started our class off right in its beginning and has ever since helped to steer its course. His hard-down ability enabled him to sway his fellow students—and, well, it must be his classic profile as much as anything else with the co-eds.

ROBERT GILL LILLY, B.S., $K \Sigma$ Greenfield, Miss.
 Baseball, '22, '23, '24; Science Club; Right Royal Ramblers; "M" Club.

If "Bob's" success at Millsaps can be used as a criterion as to what his success in life will be, we may be sure that he will rise to eminence. Quiet, unassuming, and friendly, he has lived life to the full in college and seems to have found it good.

BESSIE MISTERFELDT, A.B. Florence, Miss.
 Y. W. C. A.; Chy Kia.

Though Bessie didn't join us until our junior year, she has in the two years gained the friendship of the class. Those who really know "Bess" love her most—and what more could anyone desire? She is a lady by nature, a student by choice, and a loyal Millsapian, with a big interest in Mississippi College.

QUINNIE McCORMICK, B.S. Summit, Miss.
 G. L. S.; Y. M. C. A.; Glee Club, '23, '24, '25; Baseball, '22, '23, '24, '25; Basketball, '22, '25; Alpha Pi Sigma.

When Quinnie came back for his sophomore year he had an added incentive to make good. The "Q" in his name stands for quality of the best kind in school work, college activities, and character.

WILLIE FORREST McCORMICK, B.S. Rose Hill, Miss.
 Science Club; All-One Club.

"Mac" is rather quiet and entirely self-effacing—except at one time—in class. Then he becomes about the most outstanding man to be found. Millsaps has many "sharks" in their especial line, but "Mac" is a shark in all of his. He is a three-year man, also.

LORINE McMULLAN, A.B. Jackson, Miss.

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '24, '25; Blue Ridge Delegate, '24; Basketball, '23; Girls' Glee Club, '24, '25; Secretary, '25.

"Music hath charms" for Lorine far more than have books. Her good alto and excellency as a pianist have made her invaluable to the Glee Club; her ability as a leader has kept her close to the top in "Y. W."; and her charm, both of face and personality, has won for her many friends.

THOMAS H. NAYLOR, JR., B.S., Θ K Ν Lauderdale, Miss.

Basketball, '23, '25; Baseball, '23, '24, '25.

Finishing a college course in three years, "Tommy" has had plenty of time to win for himself the friendship of every student and faculty member. His friendly manner and pleasant appearance have won for him a place in the friendship of the co-eds that is rivaled only by his own place among the "Eds."

HOUSTON PHILLIPS, B.S. Laurel, Miss.

G. L. S. Treasurer, '23, '24; President, '24, '25; Critic, '25; Birmingham-Southern Debater, '24, '25; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '25; Science Club; Right Royal Ramblers.

In the Millsaps cross-word puzzle, when the name Houston Phillips is listed, we all acclaim in one accord its synonyms—quiet, level-headed, acute.

EMILY BLANTON PLUMMER, A.B., K. I. Jackson, Miss.

Glee Club, '25; Bobashela, '25.

Emily's return to the Class after two years' absence renewed our interest in graduation and caused us to consider seriously trying for our diplomas. There's just no telling what a good personality can do for a class; one that wears stylish clothes, writes fair verse, paints with a touch, and is entertaining wherever she alights.

JAMES PLUMMER, A.B. Bogalusa, La.

G. L. S.; Football, '23, '24, '25; Basketball, '24, '25; Track, '24, '25; Y. M. C. A.; Blue Ridge Delegate, '23; Vice-President A. A., '25.

James' red hair, freckles, fertile brain, and brute force have caused him to have a rather checkered career in college. He has doubtless been educated in a number of ways, for which he should be glad. The class is certainly behind him and thinks it has in him a man.

CURTIS W. PULLEN, A.B. Vaiden, Miss.

G. L. S. Vice-President, '24; A. and M. Debater, '25; D. A. R. Medal, '24; Football Manager, '25; Science Club; Right Royal Ramblers.

Curtis has fitted well into the scheme of things at Millsaps. He has done what was expected of him and a great many unexpected things, also. The college and class regret to lose Pullen—they are so used to liking and depending upon him.

ELIZABETH SHACKELFORD, A.B., K Δ Eden, Miss.

Have you ever heard Elizabeth "speak a piece"? That's just one of her many accomplishments that make her quite an interesting character. Her deep, soft voice is unusual, her ability to read "Juvenal," and her calm manner. In short, a person in whom the artistic and practical are combined in a delightful proportion.

JESSE WILLIAM SHANKS, A.B. Sumrall, Miss.

G. L. S. Secretary, '22; Vice-President, '25; Freshman Debater; Mississippi College Debater, '23; "Ole Miss" Debater, '25; Y. M. C. A.; Preachers' League; Student Volunteer; Student Government Board, '23; Alpha Pi Sigma.

Shanks plays his various roles of professional entertainer and serious-minded student with equal proficiency and conviction. When he combines them all, as he doubtless will soon do, he will become a personage indeed.

HILARY G. SIMPSON, B.S. Pickens, Miss.

L. L. S. Treasurer, '25; Vice-President, '25; President Science Club, '25; Student Assistant Chemistry, '25; Bobashela Staff, '25; Right Royal Ramblers; DeMolay.

Hilary is one of whom we stand in awe. He has a calm way of telling us what to do and the rest of us have a calm way of doing it. His rather serious disposition, his ability to reason, the efficient way he does things, and the noticeable check he has upon himself—all these qualities make us feel that when he does turn loose he will do great things.

BESSIE SUMRALL, A.B., K Δ Jackson, Miss.

Coming to Millsaps as a junior after two years at Whitworth College, Bessie's sweetness and charm gave her instant popularity with both girls and boys. One of the best singers of the Glee Club, her favorite song has been, "My Heart's at A. and M., My Heart is Not Here."

WALTER SPIVA, JR., A.B., K Α Louisville, Miss.

L. L. S. President, '25; A. and M. Debater, '25; Track Team, Manager, '25; Bobashela Staff, '25; Cheer Leader, '25.

Here is Walter, with his confident step and detached air. When he appears you instinctively look for a coat of mail, a coach-and-four, a long scroll, or anything that suggests the gallant and the intellectual. The class owns this three-year man with pleasure.

BETHANY CRAFT SWEARINGEN, A.B., $\Phi M, X \Delta \Phi$ Jackson, Miss.

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '23; Delegate National Convention, '22; P. and W. Staff, '22, '23, '24; Honor Council, '23, '25; Vice-President Freshman Class; Bobashela Staff, '23, '24, '25.

You have simply to prove yourself properly enthusiastic on the subjects of English royalty, the legitimate stage, and horsemanship, and "Sis" is your friend forever. She's a friend worth having—in fact, is our proudest example of that well-nigh impossible combination—beauty, charm, and brains.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN VAUGHAN, A.B. Madison, Miss.

L. L. S.; Tennis, '25; Science Club; Right Royal Ramblers.

Vaughan—"H. W. F.," as he is usually called—has allowed his personality and disposition to crop out in several ways. First, we know him by his car, a temperamental-looking machine that evidently requires the personal attention of its owner. Then his green sweater and love of drama make us believe that he is something of an aesthete as well as a mechanical genius.

ALBERTA TAYLOR, A.B., $K \Delta$ Jackson, Miss.

Alberta is whimsical—at least, when she gives you a rather penetrating smile, as if she knows something on you and it's funny, and she isn't going to tell you what it is—ever! She takes everything with about the comfortable degree of seriousness and gets on admirably in both the musical and literary world.

JOHN SHARP WARREN, A.B. Sun, Miss.

G. L. S. Vice-President, '24; Freshman Debater; Commencement Debater, '24; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '23, '24, '25; Preachers' League; Science Club; Alpha Pi Sigma.

There is a lot of and lot to "J. S." His good disposition and steady way of living make him a most stable and well-liked member of the class. He is a faithful athlete and an all-round man.

CYNTHIA JANE THOMPSON, B.S., K Δ Jackson, Miss.

Basketball, '23, '24, '25; Captain, '25; Pan-Hellenic Council; Girls' Glee Club, '23, '24.

One good look at Cynthia and you are certainly refreshed. There's nothing strange about that when you stop to analyze her—pretty, whole-hearted, independent. She has our recommendation.

MACMILLAN S. WATSON, A.B. Crystal Springs, Miss.

G. L. S. Secretary, '22; Freshman Debater; Y. M. C. A.; Student Volunteer; Delegate to Mississippi Missionary Convention; Student Assistant, History, '24; Bible, '24, '25; All-One Club; Alpha Pi Sigma.

"Mac's" diploma should be a source of great pride and pleasure to him. He has worked steadily for it and made an enviable scholastic record. In no instance has his school work been neglected. The good wishes of '25 go with you, "Mac."

ALVIN LAMAR WEEMS, A.B. Sun, Miss.

L. L. S. Vice-President, '25; President, '25; Honor Council, '25; Tribbett Fellowship.

Here we have a high-powered rifle with a Maxim silencer. Alvin's exemplary achievements speak for themselves. He combines perfectly the attributes of intense student and practical man. These, with his friendly address, make him an honored member of our class.

THELMA TOLLES, A.B. Jackson, Miss.

Freshman Commission; Honor Council, '25; Student Assistant, Latin, '25.

Thelma seemingly worries a great deal, but everybody knows, as she really does, too, that she's going to come out on top. One summit she attained was the place of assistant in Latin. In connection with worthy enterprises, we may say of her in the language she loves so well, "Dux femina Facti."

ROBERT LEWIS WILLIAMS, A.B., II K A, Σ Y McComb, Miss.

L. L. S.; P. and W. Staff, '22, '23, '24; Business Manager, '25; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '24; President Preachers' League, '25; Honor Council, '25; DeMolay; All-One Club.

Robert is the kind of person that has real stuff in him. He is a preacher who does not consider himself holier than the rest of us, one who doesn't try to mix his theology with mathematics or French drama. He is thoroughly up-to-date. We are proud to graduate with him.

EUGENE M. TATE, B.S., K A McComb, Miss.

L. L. S.; Mid-Session Debater, '23; Mississippi College Debater, '24; "Ole Miss" Debater, '25; Football, '22.

"Hezi" is merely a misnomer which emphasizes the fact that Eugene is anything else but one who hesitates. He has creditably mixed business with college and has gained much from both. The class wishes for him a big success.

LUCIE WATKINS, A.B., Φ M, X Δ Φ Meridian, Miss.

Tennis, '22; P. and W. Staff, '22, '23; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '23; Tucker Essay Medal, '22; All-One Club.

We have just one like Lucie. She is always thinking about something which usually proves interesting to her friends. If it is a new dress, we know it will be stylish; a book, it's just off the press; a date, it's with a hero; a lesson, it's prepared in an A-plus way.

WILLIAM PRENTISS WOOLLEY, A.B., Θ K N Union Church, Miss.

L. L. S.; Y. M. C. A.; House Governing Board, '24; Honor Council, '24; Vice-President Senior Class; Right Royal Ramblers.

Woolley has the knack, rather uncommon nowadays, of getting on with people gracefully. He is in every sense a thrice-balanced man—ability, proven by his grades; endurance, twelve hours under Professor Lin; experience, very little more will be necessary for his success in the business world.

JOHN WILSON YOUNG, B.S. Noxapater, Miss.

Student Government Board, '22; Secretary Sophomore Class; President Junior Class; "M" Club; Football, '22, '23, '24, '25; Captain, '25; Manager Basketball, '25; Square and Compass.

In order that the college might continue to exist, we trust "J. W." has trained some worthy successors to his numerous offices. He has gained a place, unequaled by others, in the thoughts and affections of the student body. He is a man—yea, more—an athlete!

IRENE SIMPSON, A.B. Jackson, Miss.

Basketball, '23, '24; Manager, '24; Girls' Glee Club, '24, '25; President, '24; Business Manager, '25; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '23, '24, '25.

Irene gives you a quizzical smile and a penetrating gaze and then sizes you up. You usually land in the right category, too. There is a permanence and stability about her that is rare and most attractive. She is in every sense a success.

NEWTON CLIFFORD YOUNG, B.S. Noxapater, Miss.

L. L. S.; Football, '22, '23, '24, '25; Basketball, '22, '23, '24, '25; Captain, '24; Track, '22, '23, '24, '25; Captain, '24; Student Assistant, Athletics, '25.

"N. C." in a calm and philosophical way, manages his own affairs. However, he has enough of his very own to keep him well occupied—the head of a family, a valued athlete, and a steady acquirer of knowledge. His popularity is both general and genuine.

The Free Soul

By G. E. GREENWAY

*Where shall I wander, whither shall I go?
My house has left me, joined its kindred earth.
I do not know
The meaning of this strange rebirth.
And I am lost as winds of night that blow.
My freedom only brings
A homesick longing for familiar things.*

*Like dawning sun
Upon a silver morn,
A pilgrimage it has not yet begun,
I tremble, weak, new-born,
Before eternity;
And, all forlorn,
I cry, "Where is the self that used to be?"*

*For where are all the things that I have loved—
The sights, the fragrances, the sounds,
The love to which my being moved,
Are they beyond my bounds?
Far-roved,
My love is still upon that vanished world
That outward to infinity has whirled.
In vain I struggle to forget,
And only
Find that I all the more my fate regret.
I am star-free, and should not thus be lonely!
And yet—
The breath of morning to my being elings,
And I am homesick for familiar things.*

Organizations

Seven members of the student body are elected annually and, composing the executive head of the honor system, are known as the Honor Council. Under the honor system the student pledges his word of honor that he will neither give nor receive help on an examination or a recitation. Violations of the honor system are reported to the Honor Council, before whom the accused may appear.

The Preachers' League

The ministerial students of the college bring themselves together through the Preachers' League for the purpose of studying the problems which confront the church. It is their hope to fit themselves to solve these problems and that they may truly dedicate themselves to the service of God.

Here's a fraternity in which the faculty allows only a few to become members, although anyone wishing to may enter if they can stand the test. The entrance requirements are that one must make 90 per cent or above in each of his subjects. We have quite a number of those who are sharks in their lines, but only a limited number of sharks in all lines.

The following are those making all ones at least one term during their stay here:

Right Royal Ramblers

Here's Dr. Sullivan's geology class, known as the Right Royal Ramblers. They are ardent students of the Atmosphere, Hydrosphere, and Lithosphere. Before becoming fossils, they hope to know if the dikellocephalus pepinensis came from the Archeozoic, Proterozoic, Paleozoic, Mesozoic, or Cenozoic periods.

Unfinished Work

Unfinished work is left by all,
That to some unborn one shall fall;
Though work be hard, or work be sweet,
The hours all too swiftly meet,
And not a one we may recall.

We place a few stones on the wall,
A few lines on our pages scrawl—
But 'tis—though men may praise our feat—
Unfinished work.

We gild our bit of life's gay ball
Before we hear the evening call;
But art is long and time is fleet;
The best we do is incomplete;
The most that we may do is small:
Unfinished work.

Toy Ships

One by one, with quiet glee,
I launched my ships on the boundless sea;
One by one, their white sails filled,
And they followed where the breezes willed.

Long I watched each tiny boat
Cross the bar and outward float,
Till it vanished in the distance far,
With its sail aglow like a morning star.

I may not guide their restless way;
Where they may drift I cannot say.
The shifting wind, the drifting tide,
The wandering wave must be their guide.

One by one, with quiet glee,
I launched my ships on the boundless sea;
Ah, long the day and far the way
Till my ships return to me.

Prettiest Girl—Catherine Power beat Jessie Craig one vote. Twenty in race.

Best Sport—J. W. Young. "His epitaph, in letters of yellow, here lie the bones of a good fellow!"

Most Handsome Man—French, Holleman, and Motlow tied. Bill Ewing got a vote.

Most Studious—Hendricks. Earthquake, waterspout, landslide for Ernie.

Freshest Freshman—Hopgood. Won in a walk.

Biggest Lady Fusser—Jonie Hamilton. Vote was co-ed enrollment, plus one.

Most Unsophisticated—Gladys Howie.

Best Athlete—Leroy Brooks. Like Spark Plug, "Sonny" says little, but, like Billy Sunday, he "looks at no man's back."

Best Natured—"Yokohama Hongkong" Kim. By virtue of jui jitsui.

Most Absent-Minded—"Mistuh Orang" Swazes, from Bintum.

Best All-Round Girl—Dorothy Miller. "Over the top" ahead of eighteen anxious candidates.

Most Stylish Girl—Olivia Knox. As she stepped from Vogue, in her Paris clothes, Olivia won over a score barely by a yard of lace.

Most Original—C. C. Combs. Originality is a first-class passage ticket to success. C. C. is originality itself. Therefore—Q. E. D.

Neatest Student—John Countiss. With a clothes brush, some Sta-comb, a touch of Shinola there, John sets the style with a Beau Brummel air.

Wittiest Student—Ephraim P. Jones. Falstaff, doff your shako!

Most Thorough-going—W. P. Woolley. He's early to bed, early to rise—works like a Trojan, and tells no lies?"

Biggest Mexican Athlete—Shelley Bailey. "Now, boys, I swear this is so."

The Spirit of Bobashela

By ELIZABETH BRAME

ILHOUETTED against the hot blue Mississippi sky stood the Indian maiden, Bobashela, laughing sweetly, her strange fay eyes a mixture of fire and dew. She let her gaze drift slowly upon the panorama which stretched about her. Toward the south, she watched the smoke arise fantastically and silently from the spot which marked the white man's town of Les Fleurs Bluff. Only the house roof could be seen from her position on the small hill, but she watched the smoke arise and take mystic shapes against the autumn sky, and smiled whimsically to herself. From the east she could hear very dimly and spasmodically echoes of the Indian boy's guttural whoops from across the Pearl River, where her own people, a tribe of Choctaws, had their cone-shaped dwellings in a rough circle which touched the river bank. They were merry-making, for it was nearing the full moon, when she, Bobashela, the only daughter of their wise Great Chief, was to be given in marriage to Berry Child, a young brave of the tribe, after which all the strong warriors would go on the warpath. Towards the north and west stretched the forest—the forest she knew and loved so well; the forest of sweet-smelling pines—brown, bare, slim, and golden as her own golden flesh amid the golden blaze of autumn leaves; the forest where she had spent her young life among the wild things, whose every secret she knew.

Glimpsed through the deep woodland, she looked as an elfin child, elusive and in rhythm with the world about her. For a moment she gazed toward the south, and her eyes became alluring with the soft depth of dreams. Expectantly, she stood and watched the slender, almost imperceptible trail which led down the hill to Les Fleurs Bluff. Then, with the swift, graceful movement of a fawn, she glided noiselessly through the woods in the direction of the rising sun.

Entering her camp, she disappeared within her father's lodge. Presently she reappeared, carrying a wooden dish, and walked toward the lodge of the father of Mina Pokau, the very brave young warrior with whom her father had engaged for her to marry. All the people whom she passed sitting or standing about the camp looked curiously at her as she went by them, and some of the young people whispered together, but the girl held her head proudly until she reached the lodge. Turning to the left, she sat down for a moment on the women's side, and was glad when she found that the only people within were Mina Pokau, who was at work smoothing arrow shafts between two stones, and his sister, who was sewing moccasins. When Bobashela saw that these were the only people within the lodge, she arose, and, going where Mina Pokau sat, offered the dish to him. He took it and ate, and the girl returned to her place and sat down. After the boy had eaten, he put the dish on the ground before him and went on with his work, and the girl, again arising, took the dish and left the lodge. Each day during the engagement, which had been arranged between her father's family and the family of Mina Pokau, she served him thus, and she must continue this trial until the day of the marriage ceremony.

The Indian maiden was much beloved by the members of her tribe. She was always kind and gentle and willing to take care of the little brown babies or play with young striplings of brown lads. It was to Bobashela that the women came with their troubles, and the old men who were no longer able to go on the warpath liked to have her talk to them. It was thus that she was called Bobashela—meaning "Good Friend." Even the birds and squirrels came to her as they did to none other of the Indian maidens. She was a good friend to all the wild things of the forest. And the most treasured of her woodland friends was the big, vivid red tanager, with the wonderful ribbon-red color over his breast, all flaming exquisite red save the circles of darkness which were his eyes. He lived on the top of the tallest pine tree on the small hill, and although the cardinal is the most shy and timid of birds, he flamed around Bobashela, or, perched on the tip-top branch of the tall pine, would swing his vivid body against the tall sky and thrill with sheer ecstasy, "Pretty! Pretty! Pretty!" And again, "So dear! So dear! So dear!" or, "Come here! Come here! Come here!" It was a strange coincidence that the cardinal chose, as his home, the target tree of Mina Pokau.

The target tree of Mina Pokau stood on the top of the hill, exactly in the middle of the very narrow trail which led straight from the hill to the river bank. Mina Pokau, who could send an arrow straighter and farther than any other brave, came often to the trail to practice. So far from the target tree that he could scarcely see the tall pine, he would silently raise his bow, and with neat precision send the arrow straightly, swiftly, through the narrow opening in the woods. And always the arrow winged its way to the tall pine target tree.

Busy with the preparation for her marriage, many moons passed before Bobashela again left the camp, but on the day before the ceremony she slipped away and glided to the hill at the north of Les Fleurs Bluff. Almost reaching its summit, she stopped suddenly and, with alluring grace, poised for flight, her strange fay eyes gleaming with a strange softness, watching the scene before her. At the top of the tall pine sat the scarlet tanager, thrilling and whistling until it seemed that he would actually tear his throat asunder. At the foot of the tall pine stood, motionless, a white boy, his face lit up with beautiful joy as he listened to the song of the cardinal. Many times Bobashela had watched the lovely white boy come up the trail from Les Fleurs Bluff and try to catch the redbird in song. But always her friend had become shy and flown away. But now the cardinal sang with all the ecstasy of his being, and the boy listened in glorious wonder and adoration. And the eyes of Bobashela became soft with wanton laughter and alluring with the depth of uncaught dreams.

Then suddenly from down the trail between the brown and golden leaves, she caught one swift glimpse of a bit of Choctaw red. It was Mina Pokau, she knew, who had come to practice and whose arrow would come straight and silently to the tall pine target tree. Swift as an arrow she swung her body into the trail, posed for one scant second, and fell at the feet of the white boy with an arrow through her heart. As in a dream, the boy gazed at the quivering form at his feet, while the cardinal rent the air with his thrills of "Good friend! Good friend! Good friend!" The boy bent over the form of the Indian girl and thought her the loveliest thing he had ever seen. She slowly opened her eyelids and raised her eyes to the singing cardinal. Then she looked into the boy's worried eyes and smiled contentedly, and, calling the cardinal to her, "I give you the fire bird," she said, "the fire bird who brought the flame of living fire to the earth." And then, smiling dreamily, she added: "The red bird of love. Worry not, great white boy, for though I die, my spirit will live in this hill forever. For down through many moons will come a time when Les Fleurs Bluff shall be Les Fleurs Bluff no longer; but your people shall have built a great city here, and my people shall be here no more, but broken as the winds break the reeds on the river bank. But always the spirit of Bobashela shall dwell upon this hill and in the hearts of men who tread upon it."

Slowly her eyelids closed, and the white boy gently kissed the smiling lips, then arose and went down the trail toward Les Fleurs Bluff. And the cardinal trilled, "Pretty! Pretty! Pretty! Bobashela!"

Almost a century has passed, and the stragging little village of Les Fleurs Bluff has changed to our growing city. The Indians are, indeed, broken and gone. The tall pine tree has long since been cut down, and in its place stands the white man's building of learning. But ever the spirit of Bobashela dwells upon the hill.

The co-eds have not been at Millsaps many years in large enough numbers to take part in intercollegiate athletics. But since their entrance into that field the interest has steadily increased and their records are becoming better each year. This season they are making a strong bid for the state championship in basketball.

Football Review

The '24 Majors have accomplished something which has been the aim of Millsaps' elevens since football opened here five years ago, and that is to place Millsaps football on a par with that of the other colleges of the state. Five years of steady work brings Millsaps up to the other colleges which have had it for years.

But when the season closed they woke up to find that their record stood five defeats, three victories, and one tie. Again it seemed as if there was indeed a "jinx" on their trail, for their record shows that they made 45 more first downs than their opponents. Such a record is seldom made, even by the teams which are the most consistent winners.

The Majors who fought for the Purple and White this year were men who fought to the end, whether the odds were against them or not. No matter what the score, every militant Major was in his position fighting his best for Millsaps.

That '24 line, made of huskies who would not yield, will long be remembered in Millsaps' annals. Said to be the strongest in the state, only twice did it give more first downs than was won by the Majors—the Bulldogs from A. & M. and the Birmingham-Southern Panthers being the only teams which could accomplish this feat.

One game stands out above all others, a game when, with their opponents outclassed and outfought, the Majors still could not win. The Choctaws were seemingly not in the Majors' class for the first time in football history, as they could register only one-fifth as many downs as the Majors won, but when the dust of battle cleared, the Purple and White was drooping in defeat.

Here's to the team! The team which fought a hard, clean game, no matter whether in victory or defeat; a team which, almost as a whole, will be back at their Alma Mater next year to make the greatest football eleven ever produced by Millsaps College.

And here's to Coach Zimoski, who made that team possible, and who was willing to sacrifice in order to stay with Millsaps another year and give them the strongest team in the state!

"Tiny" Brooks had only to set himself, and any plunge was spilled against his shoulders. The heaviest man of the '24 Majors, "Tiny" handled his weight in a way which promises great things for the succeeding years. Here is one of the reasons that a line plunge was seldom called by the Millsaps opponents.

J. W. YOUNG, Captain Halfback

"Stump" was handed a cruel dose by Dame Fortune in the first thirty minutes of play, breaking his hand in a manner which kept him out of most of the season's battles. "Stump" could not boast size, but he was a great broken-field runner, and could pick holes in a way that meant steady gains for the Majors. It was "Stump's" fighting spirit that put across the winning touchdown in the last fifty seconds of the S. P. U. contest.

C. B. ALFORD Halfback

Charlie Alford came from the '23 Minors and, quiescent during the first part of the season, came out with a rush in the S. P. U. battle. Playing hardly half the time, he rolled up gains totaling seventy-three yards. With two more years to play for the Purple and White, Alford has a great football future before him.

T. E. MOTLOW Tackle and End

"Mot" was probably the most versatile player on the squad, performing well as tackle, end, and half during the season. Wherever he appeared, "Mot" was not to be denied, and when a weak place appears on the team, he may be counted on to plug it.

N. C. YOUNG Halfback

"Slim" leaves the Purple and White this year, and his presence in the backfield will be sadly missed. He is quick to pick a hole, but the way he snagged passes from the air was equaled by no other man on the Millsaps eleven. More than once the combination, Harris to "Slim," paved the way for a Major touchdown.

J. R. HARRIS Halfback

"Jobie" was the man whose brilliant forward passing and long punting was always a constant quantity upon which the Majors could draw for offense or defense. "Jobie's" toe uncorked many a fifty-yard punt which sent the opponents scrambling back into their own territory. His specialty was sweeps around the ends or a comouflaged dash ending in a pass.

CLYDE L. ATKINS Right End

"At" was the speediest man on the Major eleven, and there was not a man on the field who could leave him behind. A hard fighter, lightning for quickness, and sure of his play, Atkins was in the game every second. When a forward pass was called, Atkins seemed to be down the field almost before the back received the ball.

J. HAROLD WEBB Tackle

"Pole," the old reliable of the Majors, was a tower of strength in every game, and many were the plays that came to grief opposite his position. Never once did "Pole" falter, and his quiet assurance was felt by his teammates. Playing his last year with the Purple and White in '25, he is a man who will be heard from, and that "with no uncertain sound."

"Sonny's" uncanny ability to stop a play that came near his territory, as well as the way he sped down under passes and punts, earned the respect of his teammates to such a degree that he was chosen captain of the '25 eleven. Captain Brooks was an All-Stater in '22, and will push someone hard for his old position next season.

RUFUS W. OAKEY Tackle

Oakey's brilliant defensive work, with his power to smash holes in the opposing line when the backs needed it, caused him to get into every game after his late start. Belonging to the '22 team, Oakey came back with a vengeance after being out of the game for a year, and he is looked to to fill an important place in the '25 eleven.

W. A. BEALLE Fullback

"Cyrus" is a man respected by all his teammates and feared by his opponents. When a gain was badly needed, "Cyrus" was called on to hit that line, and hit it he did, with the momentum of a through express. Bealle drives hopes from the hearts of the opposing linesmen by his fierce driving plunges. As relief quarter, Bealle never failed to lead his team with his skill.

AUTHOR L. ROUSE Fullback

"Speedy" ended the season as the supreme line plunger of the eleven, and when he tucked the ball under his arm and ducked his head it spelled a good gain for Millsaps. When he set his weight in motion, he seldom knew what it meant to be stopped without a gain.

JAMES E. BAXTER Center

Placed at center the second game of the season, Baxter performed in a manner which kept him there every game this season. At guard last year, this season Baxter developed into one of the best centers in the state. Rangy, but heavy, the yardage made over his position could be counted on the fingers of one hand, if counted at all. He was the main cog in the line that was considered by some to be the best in the State.

WALTER M. GALLOWAY End

"Hank" was one of the Majors who failed to chum with Lady Luck, for he was thought ineligible for all Conference games, only to have found after the season was over that he could have played in all. But in spite of this, Galloway trained consistently, and was in every non-Conference game played by the Major eleven.

CHARLES F. HENLEY Right Guard

"Bigun" stood across from "Red," and these two are a pair who lived up to the watchword, "They shall not pass." Not only did he stop line plunges, but when a pass was attempted his way, he could be counted on to knock it down. Henley, playing his second year with the Purple and White, made the All-State Eleven, a record which speaks for itself. We expect still greater things from "Bigun" next season.

JAMES PLUMMER Guard

"Red" is a fighting guard who adds to his fight the ability acquired by several years with the Millsaps squad. He earned his first varsity letter year before last, and reached football heights in his final appearance for his Alma Mater by being proclaimed All-State guard this year. In "Red" we lose a mainstay of the great '24 eleven.

T. B. HOLLEMAN Quarterback

"Bo" is a molecule in size, but a mammoth in ability. On him also Lady Luck frowned, for with less than half the season completed, he was injured at Hendricks and was out for the rest of the season. In spite of playing only half time, however, "Bo" made the second All-State eleven. Speedy and gritty, with plenty of football strategy up his sleeve, he will certainly enroll his name in the annals of football fame before his two more years at Millsaps are completed.

PAUL BYRD Half

Paul came from last season's Minors, of whom he was one of the best backs. All he lacks is experience, and in the games in which he played he showed that he is fast securing that. Quick on his feet and able to pick a hole, he is counted on to be one of the regular backs next season.

W. C. MABRY Guard

"Hot" made his first appearance on the Millsaps grid this year, but his consistent, steady playing made him a linesman to be feared. With a year's training behind him, Mabry should make his mark as a gridster, and we predict a great future for him in the football world.

V. E. CHALFANT Half

Injuries claimed another man from among the Majors, and this was Chalfant. Starting what promised to be his greatest year, Chalfant was put out for almost the entire season at A. and M., and his hopes of making a great record this year were spoiled. The way he tears through the opposing wall with every ounce of strength and fight that is in him carries him to success where others might fail.

J. S. WARREN Guard

Warren was a man who, although he did not make a varsity letter, was one of the causes of the development of the Majors team. Rain or shine, Warren was on the field without fail, ready to do his part toward getting the team into shape. This was his first year out for football, but his last at Millsaps, as he finishes this spring.

J. C. WILLIAMS Half

Jack is a last year's freshman who has been showing up well in the scrimmage, and should be one of the '25 team. He is light but fast, and willing to stick to it through thick and thin. Against S. P. U. and Howard College, he showed that he is developing into a speedy back.

S. M. BAILEY End

"Senior," an All-Stater in basketball, went out for football this year for his first time, but his ability was not to be denied, and he soon assured himself of a position. Hurt near the end of the season, Bailey was kept out of the last few contests. But while playing, his speed and headwork made him a dangerous man to the opponents on both offense and defense.

Basketball Review

The major basketeters are hard at work and are determined to beat all past records. No brilliant record is marked up for last season, but the fighting spirit the majors showed in spite of defeat is due consideration. After defeating A. & M. once and losing to them once, the majors lost a two-game series to Ole Miss. The Choctaws managed to win the next series, as the majors only defeated them once in a hard fought game.

Undaunted by these defeats, Coach Zimmie and the majors went to the S. I. A. A. tournament at Macon, Ga., determined to bring back laurels. The usual major luck prevailed, and they drew Mercer, one of the strongest teams at the tournament, for the first game. Mercer won, 21 to 18, but she also won the championship.

This season's team should develop into an even better team than last, as most of the letter men are back, and several of last season's freshmen are working hard for regular positions.

With wins over the local Y. M. C. A., Clarke College, Hattiesburg Y. M. C. A., and defeats by Centenary, Mississippi College and the State Teacher's College, as a starter, the majors have gone into a strenuous training that bids fair to bring results.

In addition to the above-mentioned games, the majors are scheduled to meet Ole Miss, Miss. A. & M., and Mississippi College several times, with possibly a few games not in the regular schedule.

Freshman Basketball

This year's freshman team shows prospects of a successful season. With plenty of material and several former high school stars from different parts of the state, the minors have a good chance to turn out a perfect machine.

The minors showed up well in games with the Deaf and Dumb Institute and Mississippi College Papooses. Coach Zimoski is watching the freshmen eagerly, and no doubt sees good material for next season's varsity in several of them.

Rouse, freshman coach, has the following from which he'll pick a winning team: Crawford, Francis, Moody, Butts, Blount, Bouche, Everett, M. Brooks, Frederickson, Rape, Loflin.

Girls' Basketball Review

The co-ed majors have begun activities on the basketball court for this season, and are making rapid progress under the able coaching of Mrs. Calvin Barbour, athletic director. Mrs. Barbour, after finishing a course at the University of Michigan, held the position of athletic director of the girls at the University of Mississippi for the past two years. She has already demonstrated her ability as a coach, and it is easily seen that she means business by the stiff practice the team has been put through since this season's opening.

Winning two games and losing two, one an exhibition game, is a very encouraging beginning, and with the old Major fighting spirit prevailing, this year bids fair to be a winner and a strong contestant for state championship laurels.

Last year was the co-ed Majors' first attempt at inter-collegiate basketball, but despite this fact, they made a creditable showing.

Games this season are scheduled with Ole Miss, Mississippi Woman's College, Belhaven, Hillman, Grenada, and the Mississippi Normal, and the co-eds are determined to win a majority of these games.

This year's team is composed of Cynthia Thompson (captain), and Evalena Allen, guards; Louise Young and Emmie Lowe, centers; Elizabeth Setzler and Elise McCallum, forwards; with Alberta Campbell, Maggie Lee Harrel, Eurania Pyron, Helen Henderson, Arlete Tarlbert, Ruth Connerly, Cynthia Penn, Agnes Howie, and Gladys Howie, as substitutes.

Baseball Review

Spring football was engaged in by the Majors, much to the detriment of baseball in '24. All of Coach Zimoski's time was given to the training of the football squad, and no regular schedule was arranged for the nine, who played only five games, winning three of these.

The State Teachers' College at Hattiesburg was played a two-game series, with Millsaps making a clean sweep of the series.

Although the Majors lost two out of three games played with Mississippi College, they accomplished a feat which only one other team was able to do last season, and that was to shut out the Choctaws.

Playing the first game of the series in the Jackson League park, they humbled the Choctaws, holding them scoreless and putting two runs across the plate. Dudley Culley hurled a splendid game, making his last appearance before Jackson fans as a Major.

This season there is an abundance of good material, and if Coach Zimoski decides to develop a team, a rattling good nine should be formed.

Tennis

Millsaps is again looking forward to a successful season on the tennis courts. The team of 1924, composed of R. L. Hunt and E. M. Chatoney, made a record of which Millsaps is indeed proud. In the state tournament held on the campus last spring, they defeated the Choctaws with ease in the semi-finals, and by brilliant playing won out over A. & M. in the finals, thus bringing state championship laurels to Millsaps. Hunt, in spite of a severe attack of nausea, put up a fight worthy of praise against Chapman of A. & M., who won the singles laurels.

After easily defeating the Choctaws in several matches, Hunt, Chatoney, and Prof. White, the tennis coach, went to McComb, where they won both singles and doubles matches over amateur title contenders. Prof. White annexed some honors himself in a singles match.

Aspirants for honors on the courts this year are: J. O. Harris, manager; G. H. Jones, G. E. Greenway, H. W. F. Vaughan, and R. C. West.

Arrangements are being made for several matches with the Choctaws during the spring of this year.

The Picture That Spoke

By G. E. GREENWAY

IT IS a big mistake to study all night before an exam. Larry Envers realized this as, with bleared eyes, he watched the professor chalk the examination questions on the board. He had needed the preparation bad enough, of course. He just had to pass this exam—near enough to flunking, as it was.

The first three years of college had been easy. He had studied hard, and had made some excellent grades. This year, as a senior, it was different. He was, to use his own words, "getting the rest of his education"—athletics, girls, and a very pleasant round of other college activities. Perhaps he had carried it too far. It wouldn't do to miss his degree by a flunk on the last examination. Hence the studious vigil of the night before.

The figures on the blackboard seemed to elude his eyes, and shaped themselves before his mind only at enormous intervals. Almost mechanically he began his paper. He knew the subject fairly well, but the expression came with difficulty. As he wrote, his mind seemed to be clear; and he finished the first two answers with some degree of ease, and at the same time the caution of one who wrote with a college degree at stake.

And then came the third question, brief, specific, and, worst of all, on a subject that he had entirely ignored in review. He remembered the very page of the book from which the question was taken; but for the life of him, he couldn't recall the answer.

"Um, um—let's see." The answer seemed at his finger tips; but still it eluded him. He thought and thought till the figures appeared to dance before his eyes, and the waiting paper blurred and swam in his gaze. Yet no answer came. As if to distract his mind still more, a new flock of wholly foreign ideas perched themselves at the edge of his consciousness; the queer figure of the slitted sunlight on the floor, a bird that had seen fit to poise himself outside the window, the indolent buzz of a bee. And through it all he felt the dull pain of reality. Miss this question—flunk the exam—a year's work wasted. Darn it all, anyhow! He just had to pass!

And then his eyes caught the gleam of white paper glistening in front of him. That was Cairnsley Dodd's paper, of course. Old Cairnsley didn't know what it meant to flunk an exam. He glanced about him cautiously—no professor in sight, and the rest of the seniors were in front.

Almost before he was conscious of his action, he was peering over the shoulder of the unsuspecting Dodd, and his pencil was racing over the paper, copying the third answer.

But wait a moment! There was one of the professors. He would have to wait a while. His eyes lifted a vacant stare into space. As he did so, he gave a sudden start. His gaze was centered on a large picture on the wall, the portrait of a man to whom greatness had brought success and remembrance as the founder of the college.

In some way that picture had always held a peculiar interest for Larry. He remembered how, as a freshman, he had been attracted by that noble countenance and the ghostlike reflection of the student body in the glass of the frame. As the years had passed on he had come to understand better the man of the portrait, and to see how eminently fitting was the illusion of the picture—the ghost-students against the kindly background of the portrait.

That grave and noble face, those kindly, searching eyes, the personality of the man, all these had influenced him before, but never so much as now. The wise eyes seemed to pierce him with their scrutiny, and the calm face appeared suddenly severe and stern. The Major had fought the battle squarely, and here he, Larry Envers, was cheating to win his.

For a moment Larry dropped his gaze. Then, with what was almost a sob, he snatched the shameful page from his tablet, tearing the stolen answer in pieces.

In a minute he was back to work with a new vigor. The mists had cleared from his brain and he seemed to feel about him the presence of the Major himself. Quickly and surely he finished the paper, leaving a blank space for the omitted question. With a firm step he strode to the front and deposited his answers.

The professor in charge noticed a peculiar glow in Larry's eyes. "Well, Envers, how do you think you made it? Passed all right, I suppose?"

The glow faded. "I'm afraid not, professor. That third question hit me pretty hard. Could you let me know my grade tomorrow night, if I called you up? I'll be rather worried, you know."

The professor smiled sympathetically. "I guess so. About nine o'clock will do. Hope it will be good news."

But Larry knew better. Hour by hour his anxiety increased. On returning to his room he found a letter from a well-known firm offering him a very desirable position for the next year. And he cursed himself for an impressionable fool, losing a chance like that. Another year's work wasted, and probably his chance at the job, as well.

After an almost sleepless night and an equally restless day, he found himself unaccountably drawn once more to the college chapel—to the picture of the Major.

The chapel was uncannily quiet, and he entered almost on tiptoe. The setting sun glowed in narrow slits through the high windows, and the slightest sounds came back twisted into weird echoes. Up in the gloom the Major's picture seemed to smile down on him and Larry was sure that the serious eyes were kindlier than usual.

Then the thing seemed different to Larry Envers. Somehow his worry had left him, and he felt glad and happy. What was a little defeat? He had done the right thing, after all.

Bobashela, Nineteen Twenty-Five

As he left the chapel he turned, and for one glorious moment smiled up through the gathering darkness to the other man who had played a square game with life.

Three hours later he telephoned the professor. With hardly a quiver in his voice he asked his grade of the day before.

And back to his astonished ears the answer came: "Why, yes, you passed. Pretty narrow squeeze, though. An exact seventy." And then in a lower and rather peculiar tone, "I don't know to this minute why I gave you that extra point."

But, up in the darkness of the chapel, the Major smiled wisely and happily as he kept his nightly vigil over the college and its men.
